Veterans remembered during Remembrance Day service

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

Never forget the sacrifice our veterans and fallen soldiers have made for Canada, was Mayor Wayne Redekop's message at a Remembrance Day service Sunday.

"It is only right and fitting that we should gather together each November to honour these men and women," Redekop said during the service hosted by members of Royal Canadian Legion Branch 71 in Fort Erie.

The ceremony began at the legion branch on Central Avenue with the branch's Sergeant at Arms, Bill Livingston, leading the colour guard on the short march to the Mather Arch Cenotaph where the public gathered to watch as Karen War veteran Romeo Daley read the roll call of fallen soldiers and several wreaths were laid.

More than 200 people stood in solidarity to honour the many men and women who have served their country, and those who have fallen.

The service was one of two Remembrance Day ceremonies held in the community: Royal Canadian Legion Branch 230 also held a service in Stevensville at Memorial Hall.

Redekop noted this year marks the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Ridgeway and the country's "first Canadian deaths" at war at home.

He said it is important to remember those who have served their country, and those who have died so Canadians could "enjoy freedom."

Other political dignitaries that attended the service at Mather Arch, including Niagara Falls MP Rob Nicholson and Regional Councillor Sandy Annunziata, addressed the crowd and reiterated the sentiments.

Nicholson said he was proud to participate in the service with other members of the community.

"This is an opportunity to gather together to recognize those brave individuals who have given their lives to our great nation," Annunziata said.

Members of Branch 71, on Central Avenue, and Branch 230, on South Mill Street in Ridgeway, will each hold a Remembrance Day service at their legion halls on Nov. 11 at 11 a.m.

Councillors on board with preserving old steam engine

KRIS DUBE

Special to the Fort Erie Times

Fort Erie councillors are all aboard investigating the next steps in preserving the CN 6218 steam engine caboose at the Fort Erie Railway Museum.

At Monday's council-in-committee meeting, politicians voted to spend $25,000 of $100,000 already set aside for the project in past capital budgets.

In 2009, a strategy prepared by the local museum and heritage committee estimated that $429,000 would be needed to refurbish the historic train.

The last major work completed on the caboose was in 1989 when it was cleared of asbestos and insulated with fiberglass. This cost $58,000 and since then about $36,000 in repairs have been made on the train, which sits behind the Central Avenue Fire Hall.

Dating back to Mayor Wayne Redekop's time as head of council in the late 90s and early 2000s, he said it has always been a "troublesome issue."

In 1973, the council of the day passed a resolution that the locomotive should be kept in a clean and attractive condition at all times, which Redekop says has created somewhat of a "moral obligation to do something more significant than what has happened now."

Ward 1 Coun. George McDermott says its condition is "terribly sad" and that the rich railroad history Fort Erie has should be preserved and appreciated.

"The longer it sits there unattended to - the worse

it's going to get," said McDermott.

The approval given by council on Monday will initiate a study to determine future options on rehabilitating the historic steam engine.

Councillors to discuss welcome signage at budget time

Black Creek resident Greg Hunter thinks a simple sign alerting motorists that they are entering Fort Erie should be installed before the Netherby Road exit along the Queen Elizabeth Highway.

He spoke to councillors about the issue at a meeting held at the end of October.

While driving along major highways, motorists notice signs welcoming them as they enter a new city or town. Fort Erie doesn't have its own welcome sign. Councillors previously considered installing two extraneous gateway signs, one at the Central Avenue exit and another at the Townline Road exit. The project, which would have cost about $200,000, was scrapped during 2015 budget deliberations and will be up for discussion when the 2017 budget discussion begins on Nov. 16.

Hunter attended an information session in 2014 about the potential project that would see two signs installed along the QEW.

"I looked at the drawings, the pictures and they were all very impressive. The biggest problem that I had with the gateway signs (project), was with the one at the Townline Road overpass," he said.

"The boundary of Fort Erie is actually at Netherby Road and I think the sign should be located in advance of the border so motorists will know when they're entering in Fort Erie and if they exit at Netherby Road they'll be able to enter the town along the parkway. If the sign is located at Townline Road, they'll have missed the opportunity to get off at Netherby Road and I think there is a big opportunity there."

Currently, the Town's population sign has "incorrect information," says there are four interchanges but there are five: Netherby Road, Bowen Road, Gilmore Road, Thompson Road and Central Avenue.

Hunter said he asked a member of Town staff why they chose the Townline Road location. He was told Ministry of Transportation of Ontario guidelines "dictate the gateway sign be built three kilometers within the boundary of the Town."

He told councillors that an enhanced boundary sign, with a slogan and the Town's population should be installed ahead of the Netherby Road exit, which would be a "less costly" solution.

If approved by council, Hunter suggested Town staff should ask for MTO permission to build the sign in advance of the Netherby exit to "welcome the world."

Mayor Wayne Redekop said he preferred Hunter's idea, as opposed to two costly gateway signs. He said an enhanced boundary sign could be designed by one of Fort Erie's many talented artists.

"To spend a quarter of a million on (two signs)? I don't see that. I can't do that," Redekop said at the meeting.

"With the amount of money we're going to need to combat the emerald ash borer, and with the conditions of our roads and all the calls we get about that issue, I think there are some other needs we would like to address first."

Ward 2 Coun. Stephen Passero disagreed with Redekop. He said not having a sign creates a negative image of the community to potential visitors because it shows that the Town doesn't care enough to have a welcome sign.

Passero suggested installing one sign in 2017, and installing the second sign at a later date.

The project will either be approved or scrapped during the budget conversation.

Next year's budget is expected to be completed by Feb. 27.

A story about witch's broom

My wife and I saw the first Harry Potter movie. Did you see enough broomsticks to last your life?

This article is about a natural anomaly. It is called the witch's broom and it lives in Ridgeway and vicinity.

When former area naturalist, Ernie Giles, first introduced me to the witch's broom, guess where? At the entrance of the Lower Trail at Marcy Woods there was a tall hemlock on your left. Look up high and you would see a large sphere-shaped growth. It's not a natural growth but an anomaly. Ernie the scientist said something like this. "A witch's broom is a crowded mass of abnormal branching".

What we had there up in the hemlock were dwarfed little hemlocks. Ernie said that the Japanese cultivate miniature trees through a botanical art called bونسai. What we had here was an unnatural occurrence.

I have walked this same route in Marcy Woods countless times. I always looked up at the witch's broom. Those who have accompanied me know I usually never failed to mention the anomaly. Nature is interesting.

What brings about these thick, lush rapidly-growing formations on hemlocks, pines and other evergreens? A Buffalo botanist once told us at the site there are different theories as to the source of witch's broom. He felt that a virus disturbs the hormonal balance in an elongating bud.

When Nature Calls

The virus stunts the bud's growth and generates many lateral (side) branches. The Marcy hemlock held this dense clump of growth.

My photos of the Marcy site didn't show the "broom" very well. In late April, 2008 the eastern hemlock containing the Marcy witch's broom was cut down by the local Canadian Niagara Power Company. New hydro poles were needed. The tree was in the way. Sad. The tree was over 100 years. We counted the annual rings of the stump.

Again some years ago Rob Eberly, local naturalist, took me to the Thunder Bay site of a witch's broom. Rob travels the area through his work and is on the lookout for these anomalies.

Go to the internet for further knowledge. In a scientific dissertation we read that infectious Witch's Broom is caused by a virus. Enough said.

In late October 2016 we discovered a new witch's broom in Marcy Wood. Thanks to daughter Allison Plato Kells. Where? Far down the Lower Trail and on a towering hemlock tree. We stopped our car and backed up to get a better view. Yes, there on an upper branch was that clump of dense growth of a witch's broom. Long Live this anomaly.

Typical witch's broom.

Point of View

Wanted: Ontario wine drinkers

CRAIG YOUDALE

Special to Postmedia Network

I am sure each of you have a favourite wine or favourite producer where you get your daily "go to" wine that always brings a smile to your face.

The problem we have here in Ontario is that choice is not always local, so much so that we barely reach over 40 per cent of total wine sales using Ontario grown grapes.

The story gets sadder; only 10 per cent of those sales are 100 per cent VQA wines.

The majority of wine regions around the world have a local consumption in the 70 per cent and up range with some regions over 90 per cent.

A visit to Bordeaux a few years ago brought me to a massive wine selection in a local market store. I made the classic tourist mistake of asking where in the store I would find something from Alsace. Soon after I was greeted with an incredible look of disgust from the store owner and made to feel like I had scorned his beloved child. I was asked, "Why on earth would you want to drink Alsatian wine when you are in the heart of Bordeaux?" I would like to attach the same logic to drinking Ontario wines.

So here in Ontario we are "blessed" to have a selection of wines from around the world in the LCBO and in our favourite restaurant, including the giant producers from France, Italy, California and Australia. I, too, love wines from all these countries; and as a lover of wine, should I not be able to choose what I love and what makes me happy? I would never make anyone give up their favourite grape ferment but would hope that some amazing Ontario wines are also included in that "go to" list of wines they cannot live without.

My challenge to you all is to find an Ontario wine that

Do you remember?

We heard from Sandi Leavay about last week's photo of the children in the nursery school. Thanks to her, we now know that the teacher in the photo was her mother, Orma Tipler. Mrs. Tipler taught at the YMCA Nursery School around Dufferin Street and Central Avenue for about four years in the late 1960s to early 1970s. She then moved schools to teach children with special needs until the end of her teaching career. Our thanks to Mary Gibbons who contacted us about the previous week's Halloween photo taken in October 1981. Shown was Elvira Rosettani, kindergarten teacher at St. Joseph's Catholic School. Snyder who is helping Michael Schneider (the boy in overalls). Seated at the table to Mrs. Rosettani's (left) is Mary's son Mark. Mother and son put their heads together on this photo. She recognized her son from the glimpse of his profile and Mark recognized his class from the names tacked up on the board on the back of the photo! We include this week's photo of a soldier in honour of Remembrance Day. The date written on the back is June 9, 1975. If you remember the soldier or why he is being decorated, please contact the Fort Erie Historical Museum at 905-894-5322 or e-mail us museum@forterie.ca you love just as much as your favourite international wine. When you shop for food, you most likely look for some local vegetables and fruit, search for the local beef or seek out for some free range local chicken?

We feel good about these choices because it supports local farmers and producers and creates a smaller carbon footprint on our environment. So why can we not use this logic for our next wine purchase? Grape growers are farmers too, and buying 100 per cent VQA wine supports our entire economic structure and helps grow our local economy.

Next trip to the LCBO or your favourite eatery take a bold leap; instead of selecting that teeth-staining Barossa Shiraz or over-oaked California chardonnay, I hope you will give our local wine magicians a chance so Ontario wines can take a step closer to being the majority wine of choice.

His passion for all things food and wine has led him to Niagara to lead the Institute to become the world's foremost educator in fermentation sciences and culinary arts.

Award-winning author Kenneth Oppel at Centennial branch Nov. 16

Authors, authors everywhere! We have author visits at two branches of the Fort Erie Public Library on Wednesday, Nov. 16.

Award-winning young people's author Kenneth Oppel will visit the Centennial branch at 1 p.m. to read from his latest book Every Hidden Thing. Oppel is famous for his 'bat' series, including Silverwing, Swarming and Firewing.

His more recent books include The Nest and The Boundless. Oppel was just awarded the Canadian Library Association Children's Book of the Year for The Nest, and he recently accepted the Manitoba Young Readers Choice Award for The Boundless.

Local historian and author Earl Plato will be at the Crystal Ridge branch at 7 p.m., to talk about the second edition of his historical fiction about the Fenian Invasion of 1866, Terror at Snake Hill. The public is welcome to attend both events, which will each include question and answer time, book sales and signing.

Oppel's visit is sponsored, in part, by the Canada Council for the Arts. Plato's visit is a joint presentation of the library and the Bertie Historical Society. Works by both authors are also in the library collection.

A Lego jam, with lots of Lego and tunes, is open to kids of all ages at the Crystal Ridge branch, Nov. 12, starting at 2:30 p.m. Bring your building masterpiece and enjoy a Lego challenge.

The Saturday movie matinee this month is Star Trek: Beyond, starring Chris Pine and Zachary Quinto. It will be shown at the Centennial branch on Nov. 12, and at the Crystal Ridge branch on Nov. 19, during screening starting at 2:30 p.m. This movie is rated as PG, recommended for ages 10 and up. The library collection includes many works about the Star Trek universe—movies, and books for children and adults.

Stories for twos and threes will be held at all three branches during the coming week: on Monday at 10:45 a.m. at the Stevensville branch; at the Centennial branch on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., and at Crystal Ridge on Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. Parents and caregivers are welcome to come with little ones 18 months to five years, for a drop-in time of stories, singing, games and creative play to help children get ready to read.

Representatives from the Canada Revenue Agency,

Community Volunteer Income Tax Program will be at the Centennial branch later this month to welcome and inform people interested in volunteering to "Lend a Hand" during the upcoming tax season. All the public is welcome—new volunteers for helping lower income people complete their 2016 taxes will be needed throughout the community only in the new year. The Fort Erie information session will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 30 from 3 to 5 p.m. Representatives of area organizations which provide free tax clinics will also be on hand.

The Centennial and Crystal Ridge branches of the library are open for regular hours tomorrow, Remembrance Day. A moment of silence will be observed at 11 a.m. at the Centennial branch.

A happy Halloween night for Fort Erie resident

Last Friday afternoon, just days before Halloween, I was outside decorating our front door and porch in preparation for Monday night, getting ready for when the kids would be going out for Halloween. A few hours later that day, something came up suddenly that would take us out of Fort Erie that night.

At first all I could think of was "I can't go, I need to be home for the kids; it's Halloween and we are always home for the kids." My heart almost sank and I honestly didn't know what to do, I was tom inside.

Then a few moments later I convinced myself that it was alright to be away for Halloween. That there would be Halloween again next year and although this would be the very first time our household would not be home on the big night, I was certainly not the end of the world.

Halloween came along and I knew what I needed to do. Before leaving the house, I put the Halloween treats I bought into a box, placed that box outside our front door along with a note saying "Please only take one each so everybody gets a treat" then wished them a happy and safe Halloween. Besides that box of treats, I placed a grocery bag containing four items for the students of Garrison Public School who left a note in mailboxes the week prior asking for donations of non-perishable food items rather than receiving candy for themselves. I taped that note to my food donations, turned on all the outside lights and left Fort Erie shortly after noon.

Returning to Fort Erie, driving down our street more than 12 hours later, all the lights were turned off, except for one home, ours. I drove up the driveway and into the garage and as I did I noticed that my food donation had been removed from the front porch. I parked the car and walked up to the front door and when I was about two feet from the box which earlier contained treats, I was stunned, actually shocked to see that there were still some treats inside.

I instantly had this feeling of happiness and I felt proud to know that nobody that night took advantage of the unsupervised Halloween treats left outside our home. That nobody cleaned us out, that the trick or treaters were respectful and only took their share.

In a time when we only hear about the bad and evil things happening on Halloween night, I feel it is necessary to brag about the young children in and around our neighbourhood that were so kind and respectful and not greedy. Out and around Fort Erie I told this story to a few people and each time I did, the story gave me goosebumps. It's the small things in life that need to be talked about and it's those small things that count and matter the most.

If these little people are the future of Fort Erie, then I think our small town is going to be okay. I hope you all had a great Halloween because you certainly made my night and I look forward to seeing you all next year.

237 Ridge Road, Ridgeway • Friendship that's good 4 us

From the gardener's journal

William Callen Bryant said autumn is the year's last, loveliest smile. Somehow those sentiments best express for me the beauty and also a little sadness of the season. After the hot and dry summer and the golden harvest, there is a distinct change in our season now.

As a friend recently shared, "I like to travel in spring when there is something to look forward to, in autumn it seems there is only winter to look forward to." Some folks like winter and the resplendent white of the great outdoors but recent surveys reveal that 75 per cent of Canadians do not like winter and so we as a people find many unique ways of managing this season.

For me, the delight of working in a greenhouse on the coldest of days and being surrounded by life and blooms is my chosen path. And of course we are advised to keep our spirits up by consuming grapes, apples, pears and citrus as the light generally decreases.

November has its own charms. In our home we celebrate two birthdays and that always brings a happy reminder of life begun and of course growing up as I did with American parents we always shared two times of thanksgiving, one in October and one in November.

Although the light decreases gradually over the month until we have a scant nine hours of daylight at the end, this year we have had a fairly mild beginning to the month. The full moon arrives mid month and we finish the month with a new moon rising... In my terms that is a good ending and a good beginning.

Perspective on weather and life seems to be expressed in a positive way or a negative way. We can see the dark and dreary or we can choose to see the closing down for a deserved rest and the emerging new colours of winter in the red stalks of dogwood and the brighter green of conifers. Even the moments of lessening daylight is a cause for those warm and welcoming candles and autumn scents. Yes, everything does have a season.

Although as our canny and humorous Canadian writers remind us, in some communities there is: "almost winter... winter..."

still winter... and summer."

That was true of our life in Georgian Bay area and remains true if my friends from that region are speaking the truth when they connect with me. So to honour these able and resilient friends who embrace the seasons and changes this week the recipe is carrot oatmeal cake (see box).

Until next time, keep growing!

The Bell Tower brings new energy to downtown Bridgeburg

Since the new owners Marc and Noel have taken possession of the Bell Tower at 575 Central Ave., there have been many exciting changes.

Recent successful events include the popular Trivia Nights, the 80s dance party, the Halloween Dance party and the Kids Community Halloween day.

With glowing reviews from the participants, the Bell Tower is making its mark in the redevelopment of the Bridgeburg district.

Stay tuned for the exciting events to come.

It's official. The Community Arts and Entertainment Complex, has an agreement with Antoine Gaber, a world renowned artist, contemporary artist, photographer, film producer and impressionist painter.

He has won several prestigious awards in Europe and was featured in the International Art book "who's who in International Art".

As a photographer, he created a unique digital art technique of floral, landscape and architecture photography called Evolutionary Ribbonized Photography, which is manufactured and distributed across Canada and the USA in some large department stores.

Bell Tower will be presenting a screening of Antoine's 99-minute feature documentary titled "It's all about ME" that examines the inflated sense of entitlement among youth in the Western World. The film has already won several international film festival awards. The screening will also feature a discussion of the controversial work and a meet the producer session.

Antoine recently relocated to Niagara Falls and he and Bell Tower are very interested in developing the artistic community. He has agreed to be the artistic director and curate shows at Bell Tower.

He is hoping to discover emerging local talent with the possibility of mentoring to an international level. The Bell Tower will also feature prints for sale and to be photographed by the artist during these shows to help fund raise for the Breast Cancer Society of Canada.

Kathleen Thorsen is the next artist to be featured at the Hall Art Gallery inside Lakeside Books and Art in Ridgeway. The painter creates images with hot wax—also known as encaustic painting. The process involves using heated beeswax to which colored pigments are added. The liquid or paste is then applied to a surface, usually prepared wood, though Thorsen also uses canvas. Health Corner

Which toothpaste is “right” for you?

Toothpaste is a gel or paste that is used in conjunction with a toothbrush to help clean and maintain the health of our teeth and gums. Most toothpastes contain a number of important components that help with the preservation of gums and teeth.

These include:

- 1) Fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel and remineralize tooth structure that has been broken down due to dental decay
- 2) Triclosan to destroy bacteria in order to promote healthy gums
- 3) Abrasives to remove surface stains and debris on the tooth surface
- 4) Flavouring agents to provide pleasant taste such as sweeteners
- 5) Detergents such as sodium lauryl sulfate that give the toothpaste a foaming action while you brush

Some toothpastes contain extra ingredients that provide additional benefits beyond those described above. These include:

- 1) Potassium nitrate desensitizes the nerves of teeth thereby providing relief of pain caused by sensitive tooth

- 2) Pro-Argh™ also reduces tooth sensitivity. However, it works by blocking the channels on the tooth surface that lead to the nerve of the tooth

With the myriad of toothpaste brands and types, it can be a daunting task to determine which toothpaste is appropriate for you. When choosing a toothpaste, one should consider the contents of that toothpaste and determine if the benefits are in line with your oral health goals. For instance, if you suffer from gingivitis and halitosis (also known as bad breath), you may want to consider using a toothpaste that contains triclosan if sensitivity with cold foods is a concern, you may want to use a toothpaste with desensitizing agents.

It is also important to keep in mind the potential risks with using some toothpastes, as some contain agents that may have a negative effect on your tooth. This is especially true with whitening toothpastes. Many whitening toothpastes contain highly abrasive agents that function to scrub surface stains left by food, thereby making teeth more white. If used excessively, these same abrasive agents can scrub away the enamel on teeth, making these teeth more sensitive to hot and cold and potentially more susceptible to dental decay.

So the next time you are shopping for a new tube of toothpaste, remember that not all toothpastes are created equal. Think about what you want and need for your oral health and then consider which toothpaste can help you accomplish your goals.

Volunteers needed for Santa Claus Parade

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

Santa Claus has his sights set on Fort Erie.

The joyful man in the big red suit will be the main attraction at the Fort Erie Santa Claus Parade planned for Nov. 26 at noon.

Stephen Passero, parade co-chairman, said it isn't too late to submit an entry for the 44th annual parade.

Service organizations, schools, businesses and other groups are invited to participate.

With the number of entries already signed on to participate, co-chairman Barb Horning said this year's parade will be another fantastic event.

"We are excited with this year's lineup. We have some new entries and we are welcoming back some old favourites."

Volunteers are also needed to help on the day of the event.

It's also a great opportunity for high school students to receive community service hours required for graduation.

"It takes a lot of elves to put on a parade and we appreciate everyone who helps us welcome Santa to Fort Erie," Passero said.

The parade organizers said spectators should be aware the parade will have a slightly different route than previous years due to construction on Catherine Street.

The parade will depart from the Fort Erie Race Track parking lot, proceed down Henrietta Street, to Central Avenue and east onto Jarvis Street where it will finish on Klauk Street.

Any organization wishing to enter the parade, or individuals wanting to volunteer should e-mail Passero at spassero@forterie.ca.

Shelter staff return runaway pigs home

SARAH FERGUSON
Fort Erie Times

It's not every day staff at the Fort Erie SPCA receive a complaint about nine 400-pound pigs running at large in Ridgeway.

But that's exactly what happened when a person called the animal shelter on Jarvis Street for assistance on Oct. 27.

"This is something that doesn't happen, but there is a first time for everything. We're just happy to have the experience necessary to handle the situation without incident," said Wendy Trombley, the shelter's manager.

Staff members at the shelter were alerted when the pigs were discovered running loose in the neighbourhood on Christina Court at about 12:30 p.m., Trombley said.

The pigs belonged to a farm on nearby Cauthard Road and got loose from their pen.

It took SPCA officers Mark Dickson and Ken Trombley a couple of hours to round up the pigs and return them home, she said.

Capturing a pig is more difficult than a cat or a dog, Trombley explained.

"You can't use a rope or a control stick on them because they're too strong. In order to capture a herd of pigs you have to separate the dominant one because the other pigs will follow him," she said.

"They got out food to see which pig would come first. Ken took an apple out of his lunch (which attracted the leader of the group)."

The rest of the animals were gathered and guided to safety.

Trombley said the flaw in the pigs' pen was repaired and the animals "are safe and sound, and back where they belong."

Former unknown soldier honoured

NEWS PHOTO/SPECIAL TO THE FORT ERIE TIMES

A dedication ceremony for a new headstone for the grave of a formerly unknown soldier from the time of the Fenian Raids in 1866, was held in the cemetery across from St. John's Stevensville United Church in Snyder on Sunday. The soldier has been identified as Corporal Carrington of the 47th Lancashire Regiment of Foot from England who died opposite the church while on a march from Chippawa to Ridgeway via Sodom Road. A 'Veteran's Stone' has been supplied and installed, compliments of Kirkpatrick Monuments of Fort Erie to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the passing of Corporal Carrington. Pastor Don Glennie from St. John's United Church presided over the service, attended by many people from the community.

Wesley Klassen's design was chosen by the Royal Canadian Mint for the 150th anniversary one-dollar coin.

Niagara man designs anniversary dollar coin

DON FRASER
Postmedia Network

It's a collage of icons by Wesley Klassen that got a big thumbs-up from online Canada.

And it will soon be filling pockets, glove compartments and cash registers across the country.

In spring 2015, Klassen joined thousands of Canadians in a contest to create coin designs marking the country's 150th anniversary.

The competition invited people to submit images that spoke to the soul of a country in five areas — our wonders, character, achievements, passions and future.

Finalists were determined by guest judges invited by the Royal Canadian Mint, who included astronaut and author Chris Hadfield, Paralympian and advocate Rick Hansen and former Governor General Adrienne Clarkson. Klassen, a St. Catharines resident, was selected among the five best in the achievements category.

Final winning images were then chosen by online vote in September 2015.

Last week, Klassen got the news he could hardly believe — his design detailing Canada's great engineering achievements topped the popular vote in his category, among more than one million votes cast.

Klassen's vision will soon be on the face of about 10 million $1 coins to be minted early next year.

It will be among five new coins to mark the nation's 2017 sesquicentennial year.

"I found out a week ago — so it's been very overwhelming and surreal, but it's now very real," Klassen said in an interview after a Wednesday coin launch.

"What a privilege. I'm going to put it up, mount it and frame it."

Klassen's design was revealed at a FirstOntario Performing Arts Centre media event in St. Catharines.

Simultaneous unveilings for other five-cent, dime, quarter and $2 coins were held in the communities of each winning designer in the My Canada, My Inspiration contest.

A 50-year-old electrician with Ontario Power Generation, Klassen has no formal art training. He based his image on a train linking Canada to landmarks such as an East Coast lighthouse, the CN Tower, Prairie grain elevator and B.C.'s Lion's Gate Bridge.

"The passion for trains was the first inspiration," Klassen said. "I wanted to draw trains but needed to connect that with 150 years in Canada."

The designer said he thought of Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, and "how instrumental he was in connecting our country with our national railroad."

"In spite of all the opposition, he knew it was good for our economic growth."

"As far as the icon landmarks, I wanted to make it as appealing as possible for people across our nation," he said. "In childhood vacations I have been to all these places."

St. Catharines Mayor Walter Sendzik, who was among the speakers at the St. Paul Street arts complex, said the selection by Canadians is an "honour for a community that is known for its creativity."

"Now we will have a coin in circulation we will be able to point to and say this came from a person in our community who took the time to take his vision of our country, put it on a piece of paper and be voted online ... it's special."

At the unveiling in the foyer, Klassen told those gathered he "never expected to be up here."

"I have a real sense of pride in what I've done," he said. "It's a really good feeling and I'm privileged to be able to share my dream ... and whenever (Canadians) reach in their pocket and see my artwork, it will be really special for me."

The five coin winners will receive $2,000 each and a trip to Ottawa for the unveiling of their coins.

Central Avenue Bridge closure

The Central Avenue Bridge will be temporarily closed from Nov. 14 to Nov. 18. The full closure of the bridge is necessary to give the contractor, Rankin Construction, time to finalize surface works on the bridge and install the heritage features.

During this closure, the bridge will not be accessible to the public between Wintemute Street and Courtwright Street. Vehicular traffic, as well as low-clearance trucks, will be able to access the north and south sides of the Central Avenue Bridge via a detour route. Vehicular traffic will be detoured to Gilmore Road, Thompson Road and Phipps Street. Trucks over 3.7 metres clearance requiring access to streets north of Central Avenue will be detoured using the Queen Elizabeth Highway and Netherby Road.

During the full closure, the intersection at Courtwright Street will also be closed while construction of the intersection is completed.

Wintemute Street will be re-opened to traffic to improve traffic movements around the work site.

Pedestrians will be detoured using the Niagara Parkway until the bridge is re-opened to traffic.

Garage destroyed by fire

A garage was completely destroyed by a fire early Sunday morning.

Members of the Fort Erie Fire Department were called to a property at 89 Ferguson Ave. at 1:51 a.m. to extinguish flames that engulfed a garage.

"We arrived at the home on Ferguson Avenue but the garage was closer to Joseph Avenue and was in behind the (house)," Fire Chief Larry Coplen said.

He estimated damage to the structure and the contents inside it at about $50,000.

"(The) cause of the fire is undetermined at this time. We weren't able to determine the exact cause but it's not deemed to be suspicious." Coplen said the fire was reported by a neighbour. No one was injured.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF ROAD CLOSURE Regional Road 124 (Central Avenue) From Wintemute Street to Courtwright Street In the Town of Fort Erie

Purpose of Road Closure:

Starting November 14, 2016 until November 18, 2016, a full closure of Regional Road 124 (Central Avenue) will occur during Wintemute Street and Courtwright Street. During this period, the contractor, Rankin Construction Inc. will be finalizing surface works on the bridge and installing the heritage features.

Traffic Implications/Detour Routes:

During this closure, Regional Road 124 (Central Avenue) will not be accessible to the public between Wintemute Street and Courtwright Street. Vehicular traffic, as well as low-clearance trucks, will be able to access the north and south sides of the Central Avenue Bridge via the approved detour route.

Vehicular traffic will be detoured via Regional Road 19 (Gilmere Road), Regional Road 122 (Thompson Road) and Regional Road 21 (Phipps Street). Trucks over 3.7m clearance requiring access to streets north of the Central Avenue will be detoured using the QEW and Regional Road 25 (Netherby Road).

During the full closure, the intersection at Courtwright Street will also be closed while construction of the intersection is completed.

In addition, during the full closure, Wintemute Street will be re-opened to traffic to improve traffic movements around the work site.

Pedestrians will be detoured using the Niagara Parkway until the bridge and Central Avenue is reopened to traffic.

Heavy Vehicles Requiring Permit under the Niagara Parks Act:

Please note that as a result of this detour, vehicles exceeding a gross weight of 5000kg must obtain a permit from The Niagara Parks Commission prior to accessing the Niagara Parkway.

If you are contemplating any actions covered by the above noted legislation, a Permit Application Form can be obtained found on The Niagara Parks Commission website at <http://corporate.niagaraparks.com/properties-planning/permits-applications/> and sent to properties@niagaraparks.com.

For information on how to obtain a permit or for general inquiries regarding how this detour affects your travel routes, please contact Pamela Bunnin, Manager, Property & Realty at 905-295-4396, ext. 3257.

Any inquiries concerning this project may be directed to Regional Dispatch at 905-984-3690 or Jason Marr, P. Eng., Senior Transportation Project Engineer at 905-980-6000, ext. 3552 or Dave Mallen, Hatch at 416-527-0322.

Man arrested after protest at Brock turns violent

BILL SAWCHUK
Postmedia Network

Niagara Regional Police arrested a Fort Erie man after a protest went awry at Brock University last Tuesday.

Officers were called to Brock at noon and asked the man, who had a large sign and a megaphone, to leave school property, police said.

They were called back to Brock about 2:05 p.m. because the same man was still protesting on campus property.

He had moved to the Glenridge Avenue area near the student crosswalk across from the East Academic Buildings. Eventually, the man drew a small crowd.

A physical altercation took place between the protester and a male from the crowd. The man from the crowd suffered facial injuries and required an emergency dental procedure.

Police charged Fred Bracken, 39, with assault causing bodily harm. He was held in custody overnight pending a bail hearing.

The police are asking witnesses to contact the St. Catharines detective office at 905-686-4111 ext. 4286. There was a number of bystanders that saw the incident.

Local stores left off grocery wine list

DON FRASER
Postmedia Network

It's the first rollout of wine inside grocery stores aises.

But you'll be hard-pressed to find them in a Canadian wine-making heartland.

As of Oct. 28, 67 grocery stores across Ontario are able to stock bottles of wine, beer and cider.

If you happen to be in Toronto or Mississauga and looking for some Niagara vino along with a cheese purchase, you'll find 11 of those stores such as Metro, Sobey's and FreshCo carrying it.

The City of Vaughan, with a population 288,000, has four stores alone.

But in Niagara, only FreshCo on Kalar Road and Food Basics on Montrose Road in Niagara Falls are among stores on the list.

Grimsby, Beamsville, Niagara-on-the-Lake and the region's largest city of St. Catharines — all along the Wine Route — did not make the wine list.

It's a situation that mystifies Paul Speck, president of Henry of Pelham Winery in St. Catharines.

"I just had this conversation this morning, wondering why isn't there one in St. Catharines," Speck said. "I don't think anyone knows."

Speck's winery is a part of that first move, with its vineyards found in "most if not all" of those stores he's visited.

"We're aggressively trying to be a part of this rollout whether it's the chains or the independents," Speck said. "I don't pretend to understand why these decisions were made," he said.

That said, Speck pointed out many more stores will be featuring wine in coming years, and he has hope locals will get more of that grocery-store representation.

"It's very early stages yet ... and even Walmart has yet to come on board," he said. "I'm sure they'll fill them in where there's fair representation in all of Ontario."

Across Ontario, locations now include 20 independent grocery stores and 47 stores owned by large grocers.

These are in addition to 57 stores across the province already allowed to sell beer and cider.

According to a Ministry of Finance background, criteria for the new stores were set to ensure fairness and geographic distribution.

JULIE JOSEPH/POSTMEDIA NETWORK

Paul Speck of Henry of Pelham Estate Winery holds a bottle of Pinot Grigio and a bottle Baco Noir which are available for sale in grocery stores.

In addition, up to 150 existing Winco Rack and Wine Shop free retail stores, already located next to grocery stores, will be able to move inside the sales floor and use the checkout of that supermarket.

The new wine boutiques will broaden their current assortment to sell wines made by other Ontario producers and will be located at grocery stores that also sell beer and cider. Friday's announcement signalled the first wave of wine to hit supermarkets, with plans to have wine available in 300 of Ontario's 1,500 grocery stores, and beer in 450 of them, by 2025.

Grocers selling beer or wine must have designated sales areas and standard hours of sale, abide by limitations on package size and alcohol content, as well as follow staffing and social responsibility training requirements.

Depending on the type of authorization awarded to the grocer, a minimum of 10 or 20 per cent of shelf space is reserved for products from small producers.

"There's no conspiracy," said Duncan Gibson, director of Finance for Wine Council of Ontario.

"The stores that were able to bid for licences did so and they were awarded (licences for) not necessarily all the ones that they bid for," said Gibson.

The chains "made the decision internally about where they were going to place them."

"There is an exact timetable and they will be rolling them out," Gibson added. "So it could well be that a store (or stores) elsewhere in Niagara will happen as soon as next year."

Supermarket giant Metro — which owns Food Basics, representing several stores in the St. Catharines area — offered a brief e-mail comment about the local wine sales shutout.

"We are starting to sell wine in a few markets and we will consider future opportunities going forward," said spokesman Michelle Rowland. Sobey's communications manager Vicki Leung said based on the three wine licences Sobey's Inc. won for western Ontario, "It chose to expand our liquor offering to the selected stores based on customer preferences — in Niagara Falls, London and Kincardine."

Leung said in St. Catharines, there is a Wine Shop at the FreshCo on Ontario Street.

"In addition to offering liquor in our stores, we will stay committed to supporting local wineries and craft breweries, including those in the St. Catharines/Niagara area," she said in an e-mail.

A list of grocery stores selling wine can be found at <http://bit.ly/2HfTqg>.

High school team brings cheer to the field

KATELYN THOMSON
Special to the Fort Erie Times
In September, Ridgeway-

Crystal Beach High School
Grade 11 student, Sarah Velemirovich, approached
English teacher Andrea

Nigh, with a goal of promoting school spirit and bringing girls together by starting a cheerleading team at the school.

When the search for finding a certified coach failed, Velemirovich's mom Kari Velemirovich stepped up and volunteered to coach
the team, with previous experience in cheer at RCBHS the late 80s, it was a perfect fit.

Co-captains Sarah Velem-irovich and Grace Anna Piette aspire to bring girls together in a positive environment spreading 'girl love' and spreading school spirit cheering and doing dances
at RCBHS senior football games as well as at the junior Greater Fort Erie Secondary School Gryphon's playoff football games.

They made it their mission to keep the cheer team
open for everyone to enter, encouraging all to come out and support their school, they ended up with a team of 18 loud, passionate, and supportive group of girls ranging from grades nine to eleven.

"One of my goals [for the team] is for us to foster positive female relationships, which I think is wonderful," Nigh said when asked about her aspirations for the team.

They hope to continue to spread their spirit and enthusiasm throughout the school during routines at the Santa Claus Parade on November 26th, and at talent shows and assemblies at RCBHS.

"We hope that it brings together some school spirit and that the community
knows how much our teams mean to us," said Nigh.

They aspire to bring the spirit they have gained at RCBHS to the new school (GFESS) next year, and hope that the spirit will continue on throughout the coming years.

Blue Devils host final home game in Ridgeway

Special to the Fort Erie Times

The Ridgeway-Crystal Beach Blue Devils played their last home game ever against Centennial Secondary School Friday. The Blue Devils were fired up in front of their home crowd, dominating play in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter the Blue Devils opened the scoring with their defense, recording a two-point safety. Shortly after the Devils scored again with a beautiful touchdown passed thrown by Jake Swanigan to Kolton Harrison.

The Blue Devil defense continued their strong play, until the end of the first half. After a fumble recovery, the Cougars offense drove the field, aided by some untimely Blue Devil penalties on the drive, to score a touchdown with no time left on the clock. The first half ended with the Devils holding an 8-7 lead.

Blue Devil head coach Dave Sauer on the half, "We played really well in the first half and I was proud of the team's effort. We dictated play and in the first game they were up 17-0 on us."

In the second half the Blue Devils relinquished their lead early in the third quarter, when the cougars scored two touchdowns. "The Blue Devil offense fought hard in the second half, but could not make the breakthrough they needed."

The fourth quarter was a back and forth battle but remained scoreless. In the end the Blue Devils finished the regular season with a 21-6 loss.

Coach Sauer on the tough loss, "We lost momentum with that late score at halftime. This season we have played so well, and have lost on a few mistakes or missed assignments. The team has improved so much this year and we had opportunities to win this game. In the first game we were really outplayed, but today we were just as good or better. We are all looking forward to next week's playoff game." The Blue Devils will open their playoff run against the same Centennial Cougars on Friday afternoon in Welland.

In 1925 Presbyterians who opposed the United Church union were left without a seminary. The Government of Ontario awarded them Knox College in Toronto, despite faculty and students all becoming United. So United people removed beautiful stained glass memorial family members from the Knox chapel in the middle of the night. St. James Presbyterian Church was joining Bond St. Methodist Church and the windows went secretly to the new St. James Bond United Church (what a name!). When it closed in 2005, Stevensville's Playlees acquired 3 Resurrection scenes for our sanctuary and Morningstars got us a Nativity triptych, scandalous but fantastic! Robert Arthur Newman

April 29, 1932 - November 11, 2010

We thought of you with love today,
But that is nothing new.
We thought about you yesterday,
And days before that too.
We think of you in silence,
We often speak your name.
Now all we have is memories,
And your picture in a frame.
Your memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part.
God has you in his keeping,
We have you in his heart.

Love Minnie and Family.
